What If I Can't Feel Anything Happening?

Hi, Taggart here, from Reiki Evolution. So this Saturday I am going to be talking about the issue of sensitivity to the flow of energy when you are treating someone, and what to think if you don't seem to be feeling very much happening. It is true to say that people's sensitivity to the flow of energy does vary, and some people seem to naturally notice more happening than others, but there are things that you can do to become more sensitive, you may be feeling more than you realise, and we do need to step back from the need to feel something as validation of what we are doing.

There are quite a few things to say about this.

You can read my thoughts by clicking the link below:

I hope you find this article interesting and helpful.

Best wishes,

Taggart :)
